Hampden Sidney College was founded in 1775, and has been principally supported by the munificence of individuals. It has received from the State two tracts of escheated land which were valued at $5,000, and has obtained at different times, as the necessities of the Institution required, the amount of $40,000 from private liberality. But nearly the whole of these funds has been expended in erecting the necessary College buildings, and purchasing the Library and Philosophical Apparatus. The present funds of the Institution, exclusive of the College buildings, Library, and Chemical and Philosophical apparatus, consist of 120 acres of land on which the College buildings are situated, one other small tract in the vicinity, and 48 shares of Bank Stock of the Bank of Virginia, 30 shares of which must be disposed of shortly to defray the expenses of a new Common's Hall. The annual income of this property is about $200. Although the Institution has had to encounter many difficulties from want of funds, yet it has generally been in successful operation and has educated upwards of 1500 young men, many of whom are of eminent usefulness in the country, and some of distinguished abilities.

But the Institution suffers greatly at this time from a want of better accommodations for the students. Although the Trustees have procured by private subscription, within the last two years, $14,300, which has enabled them to commence a new building and complete 24 rooms, yet such has been the increase in the number of students, that they are subjected to the great inconvenience of being crowded together to the number of 3 or 4 in a single room.

To complete this building, which will be 187 feet long, 4 stories high, and contain 48 rooms for students and 5 large public rooms, will require an additional sum of 12 or 15,000 dollars.

BUREAU OF
WAR RISK INSURANCE

TREASURY DEPARTMENT

WASHINGTON

December 27, 1918.

Statement by Secretary Glass:

Considerable confusion and much misunderstanding seems to prevail among the relatives and beneficiaries of men in the military and naval service as to their rights under the War Risk Insurance Act. Many mothers and fathers named as beneficiaries of the Government Insurance applied for by their sons have gained the impression that they must prove dependency in order to receive payments of insurance. This is an entirely erroneous impression probably due to a confusion of the insurance and compensation provisions of the Act of Congress of October 6, 1917, and to a mistaken assumption that the terms "Insurance" and "Compensation" are used interchangeably, whereas they represent two entirely separate and distinct benefits.

Insurance is payable regardless of any dependency and a beneficiary designated in an application for Government insurance if within the permitted class of spouse, child, grandchild, parent, brother, or sister is entitled to receive the insurance in monthly installments without proving any dependency upon the insured.

"Compensation," however, which is separate and apart from insurance and takes the place of the pensions provided under the old pension system is payable only to a wife, child, dependent mother, or dependent father of a man who is disabled or dies as a result of injury suffered or disease contracted in the line of duty while employed in the active service. Compensation may be payable in addition to insurance, but a mother or father must prove actual dependency in order to receive monthly payments of compensation although they will receive the insurance in monthly installments if named as the beneficiary thereof whether they are dependent or not.

No dependency need be shown by any beneficiary in order to receive the Government insurance, but a mother or father must prove actual dependency upon their deceased son for the necessities of life in order to receive the additional payment of compensation.
